

TomTom selected as 'Best Buy' product in Which? satellite navigation report

7 September, 2006, London: Which®, the consumer association magazine has selected the TomTom GO 910 as a 'best buy' product in its September report on satellite navigation.

The TomTom GO 910 is awarded 86% in its review and given a rating of excellent for the following features:

- Versatility
- Route accuracy
- Accuracy of destinations
- Overall ease of use
- Everyday usability
- Ease of programming
- Ease of changing routes
- Clarity of audio directions
- Clarity of on-screen directions

The product is also given a good rating for speed of re-routing and for its features. Which? particularly likes the fact that the TomTom can direct you to nearby businesses such as restaurants.

TomTom is Europe's leading personal in-car navigation solution provider and offers a range of products to suit all needs:

- The award-winning TomTom GO range, offering 3 models with a wide array of extra features such as hands free calling and safety camera database:
 - TomTom GO 910
 - TomTom GO 710
 - TomTom GO 510
- TomTom ONE – entry level all-in-one navigation products with a choice of European and regional map data
- TomTom RIDER – TomTom's portable navigation solution for motorbikes
- TomTom NAVIGATOR 6 – TomTom's handheld navigation solution for use with mobile phones and PDAs

TomTom has won a number of awards for its product portfolio, the most recent of which was the T3 Hall of Fame Award for the TomTom GO range.